About

Harold Stirling Vanderbilt is widely credited as the inventor of modern Contract Bridge, revolutionizing the game from its predecessor, Auction Bridge. His most crucial contribution was devising a new scoring system in 1925 which introduced key concepts like vulnerability, inflated slam bonuses, and the rule that only contracted tricks count "below the line." Vanderbilt's social standing helped popularize the game, and he also pioneered the first strong club bidding system, the "Club Convention." A champion player himself, he endowed the prestigious Vanderbilt Cup and is recognized as a towering figure in the bridge world, inducted into the ACBL Hall of Fame.

1884 - 1970

He won the North American Bridge Championships twice and the Vanderbilt twice, the first in 1932 and the last in 1940. He was a runner-up at the North American Bridge Championships and during the Vanderbilt in 1937.

We proudly honor Harold Stirling Vanderbilt, the visionary behind modern bridge, as we celebrate the 100th anniversary of the groundbreaking system he introduced through competitive play.
